HERRINGBONE

DESIGN GARCIACUMINI

"I like to define Herringbone as the Petite-Robe-Noire, because it is the emblem of timeless elegance, indispensable and perfect in any context. ."

Cinzia Cumini

Versatile and functional: this is Herringbone, designed by Vicente Garcia and Cinzia Cumini. The essence of the Herringbone collection is an enveloping shell in curved plywood. A linear, refined and elegant element, which manifests itself in the fundamental concepts of the PIAVAL philosophy: the winning synthesis between tradition and innovation, craftsmanship and attention to detail.

Herringbone is composed of two distinct parts, perfectly mirroring each other. A choice that determines a particular depth of curvature and is also a tribute to the theme of symmetry, a principle dear to architecture but also closely linked to nature, which the eye naturally associates with an ideal of beauty.

The surface of the seat, becomes here a decorative element that catches the eye thanks to a graphic sign recurring in the world of decorative arts: the Herringbone.

A geometry that makes the symmetry of the shell evident and that is elegantly repeated in some small details: it is emphasized by the fold and the thin cut in the back of the backrest or recalled in the end profile of the cushion, in the version with upholstered seat.

PIAVAL

Herringbone is a project that combines competence, in-depth knowledge of the material, experimentation and meticulous technological research. Thanks to its versatility, the collection responds to the different needs of the contract and hospitality sector, offering a range of 100 seating options, that change look and function depending on the base and accessories, fits perfectly into environments with different uses, from the office to the waiting area, from the cafès to the wine bar.

The structure is available in many versions: with solid wooden legs, in beech, ash or walnut essences, to those in chromed or black painted metal to which can be combined the stackable version, the sled base and the trestle swivel chair with three or four legs. Each of these seats can be even more comfortable thanks to the cushion and armrests, in line with the philosophy of PIAVAL, which has always paid attention to a design based on well-being and ergonomics.
