

MACARON

The new models by Laura Silvestrini

Versatile, solid, elegant. Macaron will step on the stage of the 60th Salone del Mobile to debut three new models designed by Laura Silvestrini that confirm the success of this collection recipient of the Best Furniture award at the 2020 Cruise Ship Interiors Awards.

Among the novelties of the collection, the star certainly is bergère, which displays all the features of a product developed for the contract sector: the comfort of a high enveloping backrest, characterized by a large headrest that creates an intimacy space; a soft two-layer padded seat, a perfect circle that inspires relaxation and recalls the profile of the French pastry the collection was named after; the solidity of the solid wood structure and, of course, extreme versatility in furnishing any environment. A curved wooden profile encircles the base of the body, finishing in the front legs. The profile characterizes the aesthetic of the entire seat by exhibiting a refined and contemporary trait.

Another 2022 novelty is the barstool, a model that elegantly fits into hospitality environments. The padded body provides a high level of comfort, while the backrest, soft and inviting, offers full support to your back. The solid wood supporting structure with a metal footrest makes the stool extremely stable, perfect for use in a contract setting. Sleek and harmonious, it balances sophistication and simplicity.

PIAVAL

The new coffee table stands out for its original sculptural composition, in which the top is formed by three combined elements that create an organic shape. This is a piece of furniture that demonstrates the unrivalled experience gained by Piaval in wood processing.

It can be used as a coffee table, next to the sofa or armchair from the same collection or placed in any other setting. The elements that make it up are removable for easy packaging.

The new Macaron bergère, barstool, and coffee table join the chair, armchair, lounge, sofa and pouf, and small table that were previously available, further enriching this collection which features a refined and contemporary aesthetic duality.

The new models reaffirm the design of the collection, characterized by Italian-made details, craftsmanship and technologically advanced manufacturing processes.

Special attention was paid to sustainability, which is reflected in the choice of materials, the processing processes, the optimization of packaging.

The structure of each model, available in beechwood or American walnut, is customizable with a wide range of finishes, and the choice of seat covers ranges from textile to leather.
